Has anyone ever tried to put you in a box because of your gender? Or expected you to act or think a certain way just because you happen to be a male or a female?

Yeah, we think it’s ridiculous too.

In the Introduction to Women’s and Gender Studies course we explore the progress that female and male (shocker!) feminists have made for women’s rights and gender equality. We recognize that everyone’s history is unique, and everyone has a story worth sharing. We also recognize that our society has a long way to go, and that personal responsibility and activism is our best hope for achieving gender equality in a lasting way.

So if you are ready for the world to stop viewing people in a binary instead of as individuals, then take this class. You’ll dig it. Promise.
