Describe how your course's learning outcomes help to fulfill the missions of your department and school/college

The learning outcomes of this course provide opportunities for students within the Nido Qubein School of Communication and Sport Management program to examine social theories as they apply to sport as well as enable those students to critically examine the sociological issues prevalent in both sport and society. This speaks directly to the School of Communication's mission to encourage critical thinking and socially-engaged citizens. Additionally, the learning outcomes provide opportunities for collaboration between students and faculty in and out of the classroom.
